- The case of the jailed Pakistani doctor who helped CIA hunt down Osama bin Laden resurfaced at the US State Department briefing, after Republican presidential front-runner Donald Trump claimed that if elected he would get him freed within "two minutes".
- Russian President Vladimir Putin has turned down Islamabad's invitation to visit Pakistan and inaugurate a key pipeline project, a report carried by Indian news agency ANI. Providing a reason for turning down the invitation, Moscow explained that there was not enough 'substance' in this trip, ANI news agency reported.
- Government forces have launched operations against the Taliban in 18 provinces of Afghanistan as fighting has intensified since the start of the insurgents' spring offensive this month, the ministry of defence said. Eighty anti-government fighters, including nine from Islamic State have been killed over the past 24 hours in the east, while six soldiers have been killed, a defence ministry statement said.
- One of the most senior Taliban figures in the group's Quetta Council has died of cancer, reportedly in a specialised cancer hospital. The Taliban group confirmed that Abdullah Gul Rayan died of cancer but did not elaborate further regarding his death and the location where he died. Reported by Afghan news agency Khamaa Press.
- Delegates from Germany's anti-immigration party Alternative for Germany (AfD) backed an election manifesto that says Islam is not compatible with the country's constitution and calls for a ban on minarets and the burqa.
- Two car bombs claimed by the militant Islamic State (IS) group killed at least 14 people and wounded 37 others in the centre of the southern Iraqi city of Samawa. The first blast was near a local government building and the second one about 60 metres away at a bus station, police sources said.
- A Muslim prayer hall in the French island of Corsica was ravaged by fire, prosecutors said was probably a criminal attack. The blaze occurred just months after the island, popular with tourists for its turquoise waters and picturesque mountains, was rocked by anti-Arab riots over Christmas.
